Atos Origin : Security standard ISO27001 certification earned by Atos Worldline for its Banking & Finance Central Europe operations

Frankfurt/Main, 5 November 2007 - Atos Worldline, an Atos Origin Company, has earned ISO27001 certification for its Banking & Finance Central Europe Business Unit, and computer centres, after an eighteen months process. Atos Worldline is one of the few German companies to be certified in accordance with the international security standard, which applies not only to computer centres but also to all of the company's business units.

Increased security thanks to a continuous and comprehensive adjustment process

ISO27001 certification is granted only to companies that protect themselves against information security threats, by applying an appropriate risk management strategy. Atos Worldline has implemented a process, enabling constant review of risk assessments, emerging risks identification and risk management. Where necessary they are adjusted and continuously developed alongside the security management system, which was implemented as part of the certification process.

This certification guarantees Atos Worldline's ability to ensure that companies' information security takes into account clients' change processes and the services that they are provided with, or may be provided with in the future.

"If you consider information security as an essential, continuous process, which impacts all areas of a company, then you will be able to achieve the best possible results for your clients", says Erik Munk Koefoed, Executive Vice President, Atos Worldline.

Regular audits by accredited certification bodies

The certificate issued by the accredited certification body, KPMG Deutsche Treuhand Gesellschaft, is valid for three years and is subject to regular audits – every six to nine months. In order to support the external auditors, Atos Worldline trained two employees as ISO27001 Lead Auditors during the autumn of 2006, to help the company's individual divisions with the implementation of security measures.
